NAZI UNDERGROUND IN MONTREAL

SAUL HAYES Q.C., CJC LEADER, ASSURES JEWISH COMMUNITY OF VIGILANCE, PRAISES ALERTNESS OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH NEWS.

MONTREAL (CJN) — The Canadian Jewish Congress told The Canadian Jewish News this week that the recent flood of hate literature in the Montreal area is being very seriously studied by Canadian Jewish leadership.

In an exclusive interview with The Canadian Jewish News, Saul Hayes, Q.C., executive vice president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, made the following points in evaluating the recent dissemination of bigotry through Her Majesty's Mail, especially among university students:

• The Canadian Jewish Congress is engaged in a most serious effort to combat the distribution of obscene anti-Jewish, anti-Negro, and all anti-minority, leaflets — especially among students.

• It takes a most serious view of the situation as reported by the McGill Daily. It has been aware of this situation before the revelations by the college newspaper.

LEGALITY INVOKED

• The Canadian Jewish Congress commends the vigilance of The Canadian Jewish News against Nazi propaganda in Canada. The Congress itself is continuously on guard and has taken appropriate measures with the Post Office Department in Ottawa in order to eradicate this evil from our midst, and with the aim of preventing the poisoning of the minds of young students.

• However, despite all our efforts and notwithstanding all vigilance, the problem is one of taking legal means against mailing such obscenities. So long as the Canadian government has no legal means to prevent the post office from accepting such mail and distributing it, even the discovery of those responsible for this outrage is of little help.

• The Congress also is tracking down the source of this Nazi underground. Serious interventions are now made in Ottawa to find legal means to stop this vicious campaign against citizens of this country.

DISAGREES WITH CONGRESS

Louis Zablow, president of the Association of Former Nazi Concentration Camp Inmates in Montreal, also praised The Canadian Jewish News, which weeks before had alarmed the Canadian public against the revival of Nazi underground propaganda. However, Mr. Zablow feels that the Canadian Jewish Congress has not been sufficiently active in the battle to clear the free Canadian climate from these Nazi germs. Mr. Zablow feels that the Canadian Jewish Congress has not informed the Jewish public sufficiently and has not rallied Canadian Jewry, and non-Jews as well, against this dangerous manifestation in Canadian life.

UNFOUNDED

Mr. Hayes, speaking for the official Canadian Jewish leadership, completely and totally rejects these allegations as unfounded. He told The Canadian Jewish News that, unless legalistic obstacles are overcome, there is very little that can be done at this moment, except denouncing the evil and explaining the facts to the university students.

"For the first time in many years, a great deal of antisemitic and other hate literature has been distributed in Montreal. Investigation indicates that it is being mailed, and up to now, mainly to university students. The systematic mailing drawn from official student lists from McGill and Loyola has been evident. There is no evidence yet that the material reaches Montreal or St. George universities."

"The Canadian Jewish Congress has been in touch with the authorities from the very beginning as well as with the official student body."

NATHANYA, ISRAEL — Supporting the amendment, the coalition members of the National Religious Party, Herut and May-Or Oved Ben-Ami of the Liberals said it applied only to local buses and taxis, and that chartered out-of-town buses and taxis would still be permitted to enter and leave Natanya.

Lebanon and Israel

A Disappointing Declaration

Along with many others, I marveled last week when I read in The Canadian Jewish News the "not so strange" statement by the Lebanese ambassador to Canada concerning Arab-Jewish relations:

As the editors stated in the postscript to this first declaration by an Arab statesman to a Jewish newspaper, not one iota, not one comma were changed, though the style could have been altered. But it is protocol to comply with the desire of an ambassador of a foreign country, even if it involves sacrificing the basic rules of a language. Monsieur Khayat obviously is influenced by his French cultural background (as most Lebanese are); and the editors did not trouble to change even "Christianism" to "Christianity", in order to please His Excellency.

However, the attentive reader, the informed reader, paid more attention to the contents than to the form. And the declaration itself is disappointing.

Who am I to say that the Lebanese ambassador does not give us the whole truth when he denies the well known fact that the Christians of Lebanon disagree with the chauvinistic anti-Israeli policy imposed upon the "Arabs" from Cairo, capital of a nation not racially Semitic, nor Arab?

His Excellency may have forgotten that the former head of the largest Christian church in Lebanon was a friend of, what he calls, "Zionism". He also may choose to ignore the sympathy and friendship of Moslem Arabs in Palestine and Egypt during the time of the Zionist underground fight and subsequent revolt against British rule.

I am ready to submit to the ambassador the name of an Arab village which, under the Palestinian mandate, had completely and fully cooperated with the underground, and whose sons were engaged actively in this fight. Men in other Arab countries as well sympathized with the first successful anti-Colonialist revolution, which was that of the Zionists.

The Arab "refugees" never were pushed out of Palestine. They left voluntarily, having been misled by the notorious pro-Nazi Mufti of Jerusalem into the belief that the surrounding Arab nations—which did not include Lebanon—would push the Jews into the sea; then they would have inherited what the Jews had created in a land where no other people had ever succeeded in implanting permanent values or even establishing themselves economically.

I don't believe the Lebanese people ever will agree to fight the Israelis despite the lip service its statesmen pay to anti-Jewish belligerence. Therefore I regret the fact that no Lebanese statesman possesses the courage to make the first break from this vicious circle which dictators have forged around the Arabs.

Does the ambassador, a man of culture, a realistic statesman, assume for one moment that the Jews of Israel would decide collectively to commit suicide by liquidating the Jewish state so that some adventurers in Cairo or Damascus could have the pleasure of marching into Jerusalem on a white horse?

Both Arabs and Jews at times suffer from typically Semitic illusions and fantasies originating from Baghdad's thousand-and-one nights. The Arab illusion, nurtured by chauvinists, is one of war and destruction; ours is a dream of peace.

I choose the latter.

ISRAELI BISHOP LAUNCHES NEW ANTI-JEWISH CAMPAIGN

GEORGE HAKIM SAYS POPE AGREES VATICAN DENIES "REVELATIONS"

AMERICAN TO DIRECT ISRAELI WATER PLAN

HAIFA (JCNS) An American expert has arrived here to supervise the final stages of the national water carrier project which will take water from Lake Galilee to the Negev. He is Professor Burton Dean, of the Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, Ohio.

Professor Dean said that he had completed his plans for the first year's pumping operations during which the national water carrier would work at about half of its capacity of 320 million cubic metres per year.

The main problem, he said, is to determine the level of Lake Galilee during the various seasons of the year so as to prevent the wastage of water through overflow, while maintaining sufficient pressure on the saline springs in the lake to reduce the amount of chloride discharged.

He indicated that reduction of salinity in the water to be carried south, a problem which has worried farmers, can be achieved through control of the lake's level and by mixing lake waters with sweet-water.

ROME (CJN) — Oggi (Today), the most widely read Italian weekly, published in its last issue a sensational story in connection with the Pope's pilgrimage to Israel. According to Oggi, Archbishop George Hakim, spiritual head of the Greek Catholic Church in Israel, has exploited the Pope's visit by submitting to Rome a memorandum inspired by Arab chauvinists and directed against the Jewish state.

Oggi, which apparently is sympathetic to Archbishop Hakim, continues to report "this document (by Archbishop Hakim) prompted the Pope's desperate appeal from Bethlehem."

VATICAN DENIES IT

(At the Vatican, semi-official circles commented: "The story by Giorgio Gatta in Oggi is erroneously interpreted. The Pope's sermon in Bethlehem on January 6th was a call for the freedom of religion in countries behind the Iron Curtain and, also, in some Asian-African lands where the Communists are persecuting the faithful.")

However, the editors of Oggi insist that the article which appeared in their magazine contained excerpts from the never-before-published memorandum by Archbishop Hakim deploring "the plight of Christians in Israel."

Mr. Hakim's statement to the Pope, if correctly reported, is in complete contradiction to his previous statements concerning the Arab position in Israel. While these allegations, supposedly part of a secret memorandum to the Pope, are anti-Israeli, Bishop Hakim is publicly on the record for having declared that the position of the Arabs in the state of Israel is better than their situation in neighboring countries.

From Jerusalem it is reported that Archbishop Hakim recently has made an effort to advance to the post of patriarch of Damascus, and his anti-Jewish propaganda should be understood in connection with this aspiration.

MAIN POINTS

According to Oggi, in his memorandum to Pope Paul VI Archbishop Hakim stated:

• The military government in Israel is imposing restrictions on Israeli Arabs because it regards the Arab population as a potential fifth column;

• The statement (at the Mandelbaum Gate) by the Pope before leaving Jewish Jerusalem "was an answer to my call."

"Obviously, if accurately quoted, Bishop Hakim is referring to the following statement by the Pope at the Mandelbaum Gate on January 5th:

"It is with satisfaction that we consider that our Catholic children living in this country shall continue to enjoy the rights and liberty to which all men are today considered to be entitled."

Bonn Plans New Auschwitz Trial Soon

FRANKFORT (JCNS) — A second Auschwitz trial against 20 former members of the S.S. staff at the death camp is being prepared here, according to the local public prosecutor. But, he said, it was unlikely that the new trial would start this year because careful inquiries had to be made on which points the indictment could be upheld and on which it would have to be dropped.

Meanwhile, one of the most brutal ways in which Auschwitz prisoners were killed, that of phenol injections into the heart, was discussed at the last session of the Auschwitz trial here. Dr. Viktor Capesius, 56, former S.S. druggist at the extermination camp, denied having issued phenol for the killing of prisoners as stated in the indictment charges. He had not even known, at the time of his stay at the camp, that a number of prisoners had been murdered through injections of phenol, he said. He had had only about half a pint of the acid at his store. He added that he had not known his codefendant, Joseph Klehr (who was a specialist in phenol killings) at Auschwitz.

When Joseph Klehr, 59, a former S.S. medical aide at Auschwitz, was questioned, he admitted to having killed between 250 and 300 "half dead or exhausted" prisoners by injecting phenol into their hearts. Dr. Entress, one of the doctors at the camp, had given him the order for the killings, he said.

Letters to the Editor ORTHODOXY AND REFORM Reviewer Answers Critic

Dear Editor:

Mr. A. Rosenberg (The Canadian Jewish News, January 17th) takes me to task for my review of the book of Dr. W. Gunther Plaut (CJN December 20, 1963). He calls my review biased and accuses me of "smuggling it into the paper a disguise against Reform Judaism."

I feel that further discussions are immaterial. Nevertheless I should like to reply to Mr. Rosenberg:

It is most unfortunate and deplorable that North American Jewry on the whole is too complacent and indifferent, too much concerned with appearance and phraseology to be bothered with principle and consistency.

Mr. Rosenberg is filled with an ecumenical spirit of coexistence and unity. To him the Orthodox view opposing Reform is chauvinistic, and an expression of the Roman Catholics. From Mr. Rosenberg's point of view, this analogy may be valid. But he ignores the basic tenets of the faith, history and the traditions of Judaism.

Three more trade and professional groups moved into action on behalf of the 1964 United Jewish Appeal Campaign last week. On Sunday, at the Primrose Club, a group of Physicians gathered to plot strategy and to choose as chairman Drs. Irving H. Koven and John Zeldin. Others who attended the meeting were Drs. Arnold A. Epstein, Wulf Grobin, David L. Shaul, Allen A. Small and Arthur H. Sussman.

On Tuesday night it was the Insurance men who started the ball rolling. Frederick H. Bookman, who appears to have life-time tenure as a co-chairman of the group, again will be among the leadership this year, joined by Louis Perlman and Samuel Webber. Mr. Bookman noted that the largest turnout in recent years was present and said he looked forward to a record-breaking campaign.

Those who took cards for future coverage were Norman Cohen, Murray L. Field, David Langer, Sidney Z. Lipman, Ald. David Rotenberg, Harry Siegel, Joseph Solomon and Bernard L. Warner. Close to one hundred men and one woman Mrs. Etta Speyer—in the Construction and Real Estate industry paid tribute to Samuel Zeldin at a dinner last week at the Park Plaza Hotel.

Sam, who was his usual modest and gracious self, was given a hand-carved wooden pipe rack with the inscription, "To Samuel Zeldin, whose exemplary work and leadership in the Construction Division of the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto has been an inspiration to all who are concerned for the welfare of their fellow Jews everywhere."

True to form Sam told his colleagues that there were many others who had to be given their share of the honours—men like Alex Grossman, Harold Green, Moe Emer, Jack Fienberg, and his brother Noel, just to mention a few.

Harold Green made the presentation to Sam, describing him as "direct, forceful and tough, but always a gentleman." Joseph Tanenbaum, chairman of the Construction Division, was master of ceremonies. Noel Zeldin called the cards; and H. Wayne Tanenbaum introduced the guest speaker, Jacob Ginsberg, Director of Joint Distribution Committee operations in Tunisia.

The Furriers Group, which traditionally is part of the Women's Apparel Division but runs a separate campaign, had its usually enthusiastic opening meeting last Thursday night. Norman Rogul, this year's chairman, explained some of the needs to be filled by the 1964 UJA Drive, and three others—Israel Appel, Max Federman, and Harry Topper—chipped in with their own spontaneous speeches. Almost all of the cards were distributed for coverage and many increased gifts were received from those present.

A meeting was scheduled for today in the Fur Trade office to assess the progress of the campaign and to add names to the list for coverage.

RUSSELL DENIES NIKITA MEETING

London, (JCN) Reports published in the United States and in Israel that Lord Bertrand Russell has accepted an invitation to visit the Kremlin for discussions with Mr. Khrushchev, the Soviet Prime Minister, on, among other topics, the problems of Russian Jewry, have been authoritatively denied.

The reports followed a visit to the Soviet Union by Lord Russell's private secretary, Mr. Ralph Schoenman.

Mr. Schoenman, a Jew, told a JCN reporter that Lord Russell had not been invited to meet Mr. Khrushchev and the question of accepting the invitation had, therefore, not arisen. His own visit to the Soviet Union, he said, was "a private one on behalf of Lord Russell." He refused, however, to make any further statement about it.

PANAMA RIOTS

NEW YORK, (JCN) — The Jews of Panama have suffered considerable "material damage" as a result of the recent disturbances there. Mr. Moises Mizrahi, president of the Sephardi community, has informed the World Jewish Congress headquarters here.

Many members of the community, Mr. Mizrahi said, were subjected to acts of "vandalism and robbery" at their business premises during the rioting against the Americans, but no casualties occurred.

Although the situation has become more normal, some tension still exists. Most of the country's 1,800 Jews live in Panama City, with a smaller community in Colon. Mr. Mizrahi stated.

CO-CHAIRMAN OF MOESS CHITTIN CAMPAIGN.—Samuel Himel (left) and Josef Fleischmann, two prominent members of the Toronto Jewish community, who have been appointed co-chairmen of the Moess Chittin Campaign in Central Region for 1964, as was announced by Jack Shindman, regional chairman of United Jewish Relief Agencies of the Canadian Jewish Congress. Mr. Himel again will serve as chairman of the Miami Beach section of the campaign, conducted for Ontario residents vacationing in the Florida resort.

Mr. Himel is an honorary vice president of the Zionist Organization of Canada. Central Division; Mr. Fleischmann is president of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, Central Region, and serves on the Regional UJA committee and the Canadian Jewish Loan Cassa Toronto.

The Moess Chittin appeal, held annually in communities across the country, raises funds to provide matzot, hagagot and other Passover necessities for needy Jewish families in many parts of the world.

Annual Purim banquet for the Miami Beach section of the campaign takes place Sunday, March 1st.

NAZIS IN EGYPT

A STATEMENT BY GOLDA MEIR

All those who wish well the new Germany on its road towards democracy will agree with Golda Meir, Foreign Minister of Israel, who last week expressed "regret and amazement" with the fact that the West German Government had not yet introduced a Bill to stop German scientists working for Egypt.

She was replying to a motion in the Knesset charging the West German Government with allowing ten months to elapse without effective action. She said the Israeli Cabinet had taken all necessary steps but it could not force the West German Government on the timing and form of a law to be adopted.

According to her information the German Cabinet would soon submit an amendment to the Passport Bill designed to prevent German scientists from working in countries that declare themselves to be at war with other States.

We shall wait and see.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

ONE NATION, MANY CULTURES

All Canadians and for that matter, all North Americans, regardless of race, creed or color—or political affiliation—will hail Opposition Leader John G. Diefenbaker's statement last week about the philosophy for One Canada.

Though Mr. Diefenbaker spoke at a party convention, any citizen or resident of Canada, irrelevant of political faith, will agree with his words:

"What is our philosophy? We believe in one Canada. That has been the

NEW DEMAGOGUERY

ENTER CAQUETTE

To one conversant with the French language and brought up in the true esprit of French culture—the culture of a Voltaire, Rousseau, down to Mauriac of these days—it is revolting to listen to some utterances by Real Caouette.

Speaking last week about some aspects of the French Canadian position in Confederation, the Social Credit leader stooped to the lowest kind of demagoguery when he incited his fellow-French Canadians against the "fact" that children of French Canadian mothers were misled during World War II to be killed overseas.

Mr. Caouette forgets that "his" principle from the earliest days.

And in conclusion:

"... There shall be no dominant and no subservient races in this nation."

In this atmosphere, when Canada is presented by some demagogues as the country of two races only, it is good to have the former prime minister remind the people that one-third of this nation consists of Canadians who are neither British nor French—but good, patriotic citizens nevertheless.

France was one of the victims of Hitlerism in the last war, raped and despoiled by the Nazis, subjugated to the most unbelievable cruelties ever recorded in history. French Catholics, French Royalists and French Leftists fought together against the Nazi abomination. So did the English. So did all free men. We doubt very much whether Caouette understands French. At any rate, those among us who do comprehend and appreciate the beauties of the French language, who consider it part of our cultural heritage, cannot understand Real's patois. We are confident that the Quebecois are as deaf to his hysterics as we are.

SHALOM CONTROVERSY SETTLED

The New Israeli liner Shalom will, after all, have a kosher kitchen only. The pressure from the National Religious Party seems to have been decisive and the Government has given its agreement.

The Zim management is apparently resigned to having the single kosher kitchen. The company's general manager, Dr. Naftali Widra, said that he would not resign, even if the Government ordered the company to forgo its planned non-kosher kitchen.

Clarification of the situation came last week end with the reception by the company of the first news that the trials of the Shalom off the Atlantic coast of France had been completed and that everything was functioning normally.

The news was received with great enthusiasm by the Zim Management as it means that the ship will be ready

YIDDISH OR HEBREW

LET'S MAKE UP OUR MIND

We are grateful to the Histadrut for inviting to Canada the great Yiddish poet, Avraham Sutzkever. Especially those who were thrilled by the beautiful Yiddish poetry are immeasurably thankful for an unforgettable evening. However, there is one statement ascribed to Sutzkever which is puzzling.

A Toronto daily quoted the poet and emissary of the Histadrut as having said: while Hebrew remains the language of Israel, Yiddish should be the language of the Diaspora.

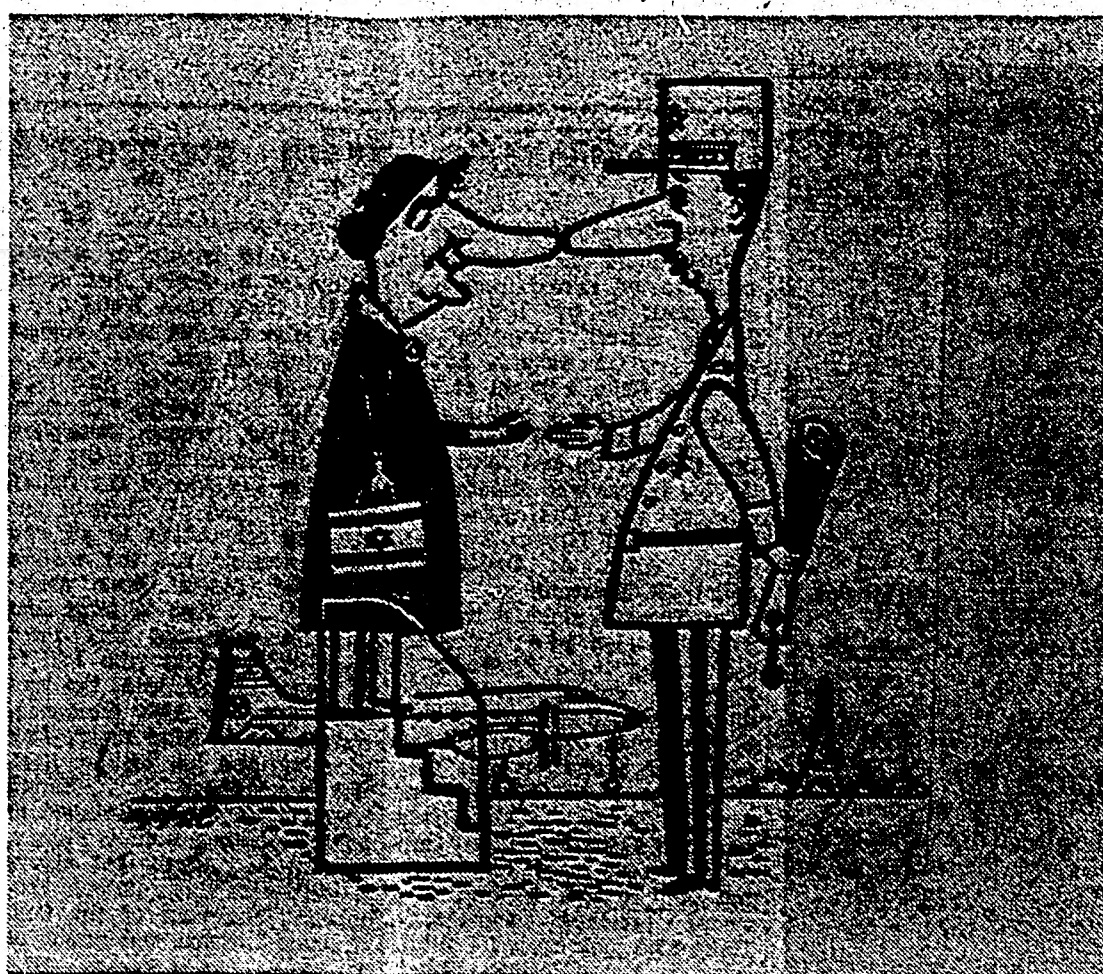

This is something new and worth recording. So far as we are acquainted with Zionist history, the Histadrut—especially its dominant party Mapai—always has fought for the primacy of Hebrew as the language of modern Jewish renaissance. Mr. Ben Gurion, assuredly the most authoritative leader of Histadrut, has repeated publicly upon many an occasion that Hebrew, not Yiddish, is the language and the culture which unites the land of Israel with the Diaspora.

Under the regime of the Histadrut, to this day the only Yiddish daily in Israel is not recognized officially as such, but appears under two different names as a tri-weekly. The Histadrut (which controls the government and the paper) does not place Yiddish on an equal footing with any foreign language press because it fears that Yiddish may hinder the process of Hebraization of the nation.

Certainly there is a sentimental attachment to Yiddish in Israel. This sentiment also exists among North American Jews who are determined to speak English while, at the same time, they love Yiddish folklore. But when a Histadrut emissary makes a remark concerning this kind of Jewish bilingualism, it behooves him to clear it first with his party and his government.

We should like to know what the policy of the Histadrut is. And let there be no double talk about two languages in the Diaspora or elsewhere. What shall we teach our children in the Jewish Day Schools? For Yiddish and Hebrew—both—can be taught only to geniuses. And we want our children to be normal.

TOPIC FOR A SABBATH MORN

There's a small shul in Jerusalem that serves as much for general conversation as for prayer or study. The other Sabbath morning, the members took a very lively interest in the arrival of the Egyptian pilot. One Western-oriented man had a theory. Hilmi was an Egyptian Rudolf Hess, come over with a special peace offer. Some said he met a Jewish girl in Cairo, and came here so as to be able to marry her. Others said he was Jewish, or at least part-Jewish and did not want to fight against Israel. Still others, with a wise nod, maintained he was merely a really clever spy, much cleverer than Israeli spy-catchers. The only point on which all agreed was that it was much pleasanter to be sitting in shul debating the flight of an Egyptian pilot to Israel, than of an Israeli pilot to Egypt.

SERMON OF THE WEEK

HUMAN RIGHTS

When, in 1901, the now famous Hammurabi Code was discovered at Susa (the ancient Shushan), great interest was naturally aroused among theologians. Hammurabi was King of Babylon about the time of 1700 B.C.E., and because of the antiquity of his Code of Law, many scholars concluded that it was in this Code that the Laws of Moses had their source and that Moses himself had been directly influenced in his teachings by the earlier work of Hammurabi. Bible critics suggested that the Torah laws had their origin not, as our tradition teaches, in the Revelation at Sinai, but in the period following the conquest and settlement of Canaan when Israel became an agricultural people, and that these laws were influenced by their Canaanite environment into which the Hammurabi influence had infiltrated.

However, there is no historical evidence whatever that the Canaanites ever knew or accepted the Hammurabi Code or that there was any direct culture-contact between the two civilisations. Moreover, more detailed enquiry revealed that the Code's similarities to the Torah were more apparent than real; but that, on the other hand, the differences between the two are fundamental and vital.

These considerations have particular applicability to the Torah laws regulating slavery with which our Sidra opens. The people who had until now been entirely subjected to an inhuman slavery were now taught a new level of humaneness in the treatment of a fellow and brother. The ideal was to be freedom for every man; and if a Hebrew was sold into slavery for a theft which he had committed and which he could not make good, he was nevertheless not to be treated as a chattel or a thing, but as a person with human rights.

The same word is used both for "servant" and for "slave"; and Moses was called "eved" — "servant of the Lord." If he was attacked and injured by his master, that was sufficient to procure his immediate release. So also was it forbidden to deliver up to his master a "slave" who had run away from his master. The Torah did not indeed sweep away at once the very institution of slavery, which was regarded universally as a normal and necessary adjunct of society. But it proclaimed the rights of the individual and laid down so many safeguards for his proper treatment that the rabbis in the Talmud declared: "Whoever acquires a slave really has acquired a master."

Our Sidra laid down the first principle that the slave is in any case to go free after six years' service. If, however, the man of his own volition chose to remain in slavery rather than take his place as a free man, saying "I love my master . . . then, having made his declaration before judges, he was to be taken to the door-post of the house, where all who passed by might see, and his ear was to be pierced with an awl so that he would bear for all time the mark of his voluntary enslavement. And, according to Rabbinic interpretation, even this poor creature was forced to accept his freedom when "yovel" — the jubilee year — arrived.

Slavery was to be regarded as an inferior status, in opposition to the will of God who had proclaimed the ideal of freedom. Thus the rabbis in the Talmud discussed the question of why the ear was selected for this branding, and they explained: "This ear which heard Me proclaim on Mount Sinai 'For unto Me the children of Israel are servants,'" and yet its owner went and procured another master — let it be pierced!"

What a different attitude is revealed in the Hammurabi Code! There the master's ownership of the slave was complete. His name was tattooed on the slave's arm to ensure that he would not run away; the fugitive was returnable, and a reward payable to the captor. Hammurabi gave formal enactment to the accepted norms and customs of his contemporary society.

The Torah set down new and even revolutionary standards in the relationships between man and God, and between man and man, introducing the sanction of the God of justice and freedom, and legislating for the future Israel that was to establish itself in time to come on the principles of its religious charter.

ONLY IN AMERICA

by HARRY GOLDEN

THE JEWS, AND THE ARABS

In 1959, Thomas Griffith, Foreign News editor of "Time" wrote in his brilliant book, "The Waist-High Culture," of the Arabs, "... their only intelligible message to us sometimes seems to be: 'You've got to understand us; we're hysterical.'"

There seems to be a strong truth in this, especially when you consider that when sane men start considering the Arabs they wind up hysterical, too.

The Arabs have proclaimed a boycott of all international firms who do business with Israel or who have employees who are Jewish and contribute money to Jewish or Zionist causes. What could be a better model of reserve and good sense than a British insurance firm? Yet nevertheless the Norwich Insurance Society of Great Britain forced Lord Mancroft, a Jewish member of its board of directors, to resign so the Arabs would lift their boycott. This not only got the Norwich Insurance Society in trouble with the rest of the Englishmen in Great Britain, it got them in trouble with Lord Mancroft who wouldn't take his old job back when hundreds of Jewish investors in the Norwich Insurance Society started withdrawing hundreds of thousands of pounds.

When he was a member of Harry Truman's cabinet, the late James Forrestal, according to the biographies, was very wary about recognizing Israel since he said this would offend the Arab nations. Fortunately for Israel and American foreign policy, Congressmen with 300 Jewish constituents back in Des Moines or Indianapolis neglected Mr. Forrestal's caution. To this day, American concerns drilling oil in the Near East cannot hire Jewish specialists, typists, or truck drivers and no American soldier who is Jewish can be posted to the Middle East.

And if we told the Arabs to mind their business what would happen? Would they sell all their oil to the Russians who can't afford to buy it? And if they could buy all of it, who would buy the Rumanian oil.

What kind of people are these Arabs? Consider the best of them, say, Ibn Saud. When oil is pumped from the ground, it is accompanied by a gas which must be burnt off. A European concern once suggested to the Ibn Saud that if he would invest half his oil royalties for one year, they would match this with their own capital and build a gas line from Saudi Arabia to Paris, lighting every city along the way. Ibn Saud said he'd keep his royalties and burn off the gas.

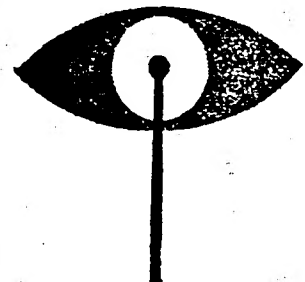

Thomas Griffith concluded his resume of the Arabs with the observation that "... our intrusion in the Middle East is not quite what we intended. Our techniques are quickly learned but our codes are not, partly because we do not always observe them so carefully when far away. We surround ourselves with a retinue of people who minister to us, and who copy our worst traits but not our best. . . ."

In short, we are listening. I fear, to Arab sheiks who not only want our dollars but our rights as human beings and we fail to realize the mass of Arabs are a people of the Industrial Revolution forgot. Their chief interest in this world is not the Israeli boycott. They probably never heard of the Arab boycott, let alone the Norwich Insurance Society. For millions of them in the Arab land the big concern is whether they will have food enough to survive one more day.

I ONLY LOOK EXPENSIVE

The truth is I'm a slob! I'm the kind of guy that will walk into an exclusive restaurant and order a hotdog. Revolting! But I like to be different. I turned in my long curly locks and black turtle-neck sweater for a top hat and tails. But deep down, I'm still the same brilliant, expressive, disciplined, inexpensive, modest, creative genius I always was. Let me prove it. I should like to quote on your next job. I paint marvellous signs and am a master of the silk screen process.

Sutzkever Here

A Great Poet Addresses Torontonians

"In Europe, Jewish towns and cities were turned into deserts; in Israel, deserts are turned into flourishing cities," declared Abraham Sutzkever, the renowned Yiddish poet from Israel, at a celebration of 40 years

Histadrut Campaign, attended by a thousand persons, last week at Toronto's Beth Tzedec Synagogue. Chairman of the evening was Shama Ogden. The delivered greetings: Controller Herbert Orloff; Meyer W.

Gasner president, Central Region, Canadian Jewish Congress; Max Federman, for the trade unions; Julius Hayman, Zionist Organization of Canada, Central Region; Rabbi David Monson; Zvi Ferens, President United Organizations for Histadrut; I. Appel-Achdut Haavodah-Poale Zion; Lipe Wise, Farband-Labour Zionist Order; Bob Soltz for the Labour Zionist Youth. George Steinhouse, read a declaration of 40 years Histadrut Campaign. Jacob Egit spoke about the life and works of Avraham

Sutzkever. Sutzkever spoke about the meaning of revenge against the Nazis. He pictured the many ways the Jewish people tried to take revenge against the Nazis during the war, but, he said, he came to the conclusion that the most effective revenge against our enemies is to build our own homeland, the State of Israel.

The Israeli artists Mariam Jakobi and Nahum Nardi appeared on the artistic program.

Israel National Theatre Coming To Canada Soon

To Appear In Montreal And Toronto

TEL AVIV, (JCN) — Habimah, the Israel National Theatre Company, left last week for its ten-week tour of North America. The tour will include performances in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Miami, Montreal and Toronto.

He will appear on the stage, introduce the scenes and mingle with the actors.

MASHEL TEITELBAUM • By G. LORANGER

On the eve of his exhibition which opened at Toronto's Gallery MOOS on February 6, Moshel Teitelbaum has been awarded the Zack's Award of Merit in the Royal Canadian Academy Exhibition at the National Gallery of Canada. This award is significant for two reasons. In the first place, it represents the independent choice of Willem Sandberg, the brilliant and dynamic Director of the Stedelijk Museum of Amsterdam whose reputation as an authority on contemporary international art and as a museum administrator is unequalled in the Western World. Secondly, the award has been made to a highly talented and intelligent painter for whom this kind of public recognition is long overdue.

Born in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan in 1921, Teitelbaum studied at the University of Saskatchewan from 1939-41. Subsequently, he studied painting with the outstanding American artist, Clifford Still in 1950-51 and with the great German Expressionist Max Beckmann. Teitelbaum lived and worked in Europe during 1951 and returned to teach for a brief period at the Manitoba School of Art.

It is regrettable that the school for talented young painters which Teitelbaum founded in survive because of the lack of support and enthusiasm either from official cultural sources or from the too few individual art patrons in this country. This project nevertheless was successful for Teitelbaum who had the satisfaction of seeing a number of intelligent young people emerge as potential painters of talent.

Teitelbaum's painting is not easy for those people who are satisfied with a superficial contact with works of art. He is uncompromising as a man and as a painter. He is modest about his work — a quality which is unusual to-day when so many artists have become public relations agents for their own work.

Hugo McPherson best describes Teitelbaum's work in these words — "Here is a painter who is somehow inside everyone of his works. His canvases are not merely an easel-painter's obser-

Yeutushenko As "Jesus"

ROME, (JCN) — Italian director Pier Paolo Pasolini is reported to have offered Yevgeni Yeutushenko, the Russian poet who wrote "Babi Yar", the role of Jesus in his film version of the "Gospel According to Saint Matthew," which he plans to film in Israel.

Pasolini said that Yeutushenko was the ideal type to personify Jesus Christ since "he is tall, blonde and has a sad expression in his eyes." The Italian director recently returned from a visit to Israel where he inspected the sites where the film will be made, and looked for the right types to take part in the film. He stated that he does not wish to ask professional actors to participate.

A spokesman for the Soviet Embassy was reported to have refused to comment on Pasolini's request. He said only that he had forwarded the request to Moscow.

The Israeli artists Mariam Jakobi and Nahum Nardi appeared on the artistic program.

vations on life; each is an expedition in 1961 was not able to experience — a challenging experience — exhilarating and muscular." Torontonians will have an excellent opportunity to see Teitelbaum's recent works at Gallery Moos from February 6-19. The work of this artist is too strong and dynamic to be overlooked.

TORONTONIAN TO EXHIBIT IN U. S.

Sam Markle, President of Creative Signs has transferred his show of "Pop Sign Art" to the foyer of the Odeon Fairlawn Theatre.

The show recently premiered at the Gallery Pascal, where it received an enthusiastic reception. The "Pop Art Exhibit," which uses letters, numerals and signs was created by Canadian and European artists, most of whom are on the staff of Creative Signs Ltd.

"We are rather pleased about being at the Fairlawn at the same time as the movie 'Doctor Strangelove,'" said Markle. "We have titled our show 'How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love Pop Art.'"

Meanwhile, brother Jack Markle is flying to New York on the weekend to arrange gallery exhibitions in New York.

ONTARIO'S CAMP MASSAD REORGANIZED

Ontario Camp Massad, established eleven years ago as the first Hebrew speaking summer camp in the province, has been reorganized and will cooperate in the future closely with the Zionist Organization of Canada.

Mrs. Rose Hersh, one of the original founders, once more heads the camp committee. Among other members of the committee who will participate actively in the future development and growth of the camp are: Mr. Mannie Brown, leading Zionist and chairman of the Canadian Zionist Camps Association; Dr. Joseph Diamond, executive director, Bureau of Jewish Education in Toronto; Mr. Wilfred Gordon, Q.C. and Mr. Saul Sigler, well known communal leaders; Messrs. Leon Sharon, Abe Richmond and Alexander Brown. Campers spending the summer at Massad not only benefit from a healthful program of activities in the natural camp surroundings of the beautiful Muskoka area, but acquire considerable facility in spoken Hebrew, the language in use. While Massad provides a range of sports from waterskiing to dramatics, arts and crafts, the camp also emphasizes a Jewish cultural, religious and Zionist program. Last year a new and spacious recreation hall was completed. The committee is planning constantly for a continuous improvement of both camp facilities and program. The camp kitchen is under the supervision of the Kashruth Division of the Canadian Jewish Congress.

FEATURE SUNNY TOUR TO ISRAEL

Forty group tours to sunny Israel are offered by Histadrut Tours in 1964 in commemoration of the 40th Anniversary of the Histadrut Campaign in America. Histadrut Tours is a non-profit educational project of the National Committee for Labor Israel. Histadrut Tours' main purpose is to offer friends and admirers of this vigorous new country an opportunity to see Israel's growth and development first hand. These tours are designed to be well within the budget of people with limited means.

Package tours to Israel begin at $414 per person, many with stopovers in Europe. This does not include transportation. Group roundtrip airfare via El Al jets for an additional $535 can be purchased separately through Histadrut Tours. Departures will take place weekly from New York.

Tours feature first-class hotels with two meals per day and sightseeing from Dan to Eilat in Israel and in Europe. As guests of Histadrut in Israel, the people who built it, tourists will go beyond the customary sightseeing routine. Guides are multi-lingual, and through their supervision, participants will receive a deeper understanding of modern Israel.

As a special feature, Histadrut offers visits to kibbutzim and tours which highlight a Jewish religious or national holiday. There is a choice of Passover and Independence Day Tours, as well as a variety of summer vacation tours.

SINGIN' IN THE RAIN

BY RUTHIE

A university director is acclaimed to have said recently that he was very happy to note mothers driving their children to school on rainy days. He claimed that this showed mama's interest in her darling. To which a police chief replied that he'd slap a twenty-five-dollar fine on each car — they're a traffic hazard.

Gosh, you can't breathe anymore without someone analyzing you, dissecting you and running you through a fine tooth comb.

If a mother wants to drive her youngster to school, that's her affair. Only let her accept the consequences if her "baby" grows up a softie.

And if a youngster rides to a school no more than half-a-mile away, it's no one's fault if he's dubbed a jellyfish on the ball field. Also he doesn't know what he misses.

Abe Lincoln said God gave hands and feet—for a purpose. But today they apparently are excess baggage. Why, if you get out of the wrong side of a car and have to cross the street, you feel you've done your duty by your muscles.

Kids can hardly wait till they're sixteen so that they can drive anything on four wheels. Is it then a wonder that, in a crisis, all we can produce are flat feet and fallen arches, with sway backs as a runner-up?

Remember the song, Singin' In The Rain? Believe me, it's the best tonic for any sort of depression. The only thing is, if you take that advice, you may put your local psychiatrist out of business.

Papa used to think I was some sort of nut. Every time it rained, there I was — slicker (that dates me), rain hat, boots — raring to go. Nor was I alone. Like ants crawling out of the woodwork, somehow the word got around and, before anyone knew it, we were about ten strong tramping through the puddles.

And what fun! There was nothing more effective in dispelling inhibitions, nor was there anything more exhilarating. You just had to sing in the rain.

Many a time my school problems were solved that way. Nothing could compare with the steady patter of rain to fluff the cobwebs from your brain. And if raindrops slid down your face — all the better.

Mama always was afraid we'd come home chilled to the bone. Maybe — at her age. But kids? We were like warm-blooded animals. Cheeks rosy, eyes aglow — we couldn't get to the kitchen fast enough to raid the ice-box (fridge to you).

Those were the days!

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Irving

Friedlan of Montreal and Mrs. Charles Faith. Winning tickets were drawn by two lodge members who recently have celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary: Mrs. Lou Jessel and Mrs. Max Berenbaum. The dinner was highlighted by a musical program.

• Future fund raising projects were discussed by members of Etzion Chapter, Mizrahi-Hapoel Mizrahi, at a meeting in the home of Mrs. C. Cohen. Mrs. L. Rosenfield presided. The raffle donated by the hostess was won by Mrs. Klingman.

• Beth Radom Sisterhood will hold its annual tea on Sunday, February 9th, at 18 Reiner Rd. Conveners are Mrs. Morris Karalnick and Mrs. Alec Givertz. Tea will be poured by: Mrs. B. Adler; Mrs. Ralph Glass; Mrs. Morris Swimmer; Mrs. Percy Hoffman; and the president, Mrs. Harold Pelcovitz.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

VEGETABLE STUFFED COD

1 lb. codfish steak cut in 2 slices
1 carrot
1 green pepper
1 medium onion
1 stalk celery
1 medium tomato
3 sprigs parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon tarragon, dill or dry mustard

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Chop all vegetables fine and add half the salt. Preheat oven to moderately hot, 400 degrees. Place one slice of fish on a lightly buttered baking dish. Pile chopped vegetables on the fish and add a few bits of butter or margarine. Top with second slice. Sprinkle with salt, the herb or the dry mustard and pepper, and add another dot of butter. Bake about 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 4 small servings of 134 calories each.

NAZIS IN MONTREAL

"Other hate literature was distributed at McGill but it was not specifically anti-Jewish or anti-Negro, though it excited a great deal of attention because of the swastikas on the material. Some students have today owned up to the distribution of the literature, stating it as a practical joke. They have so confessed to the principal of McGill.

"The real difficulty lies in the lack of preventive post office regulation and until the post office department is willing to declare the material non-mailable, the most that can be done is to keep watch on those responsible.

The Canadian Jewish Congress presently is investigating two important leads as to the source of distribution. Source of the material itself is very well known (Conde-McGinley, Newark).

McGILL DAILY REVELATIONS

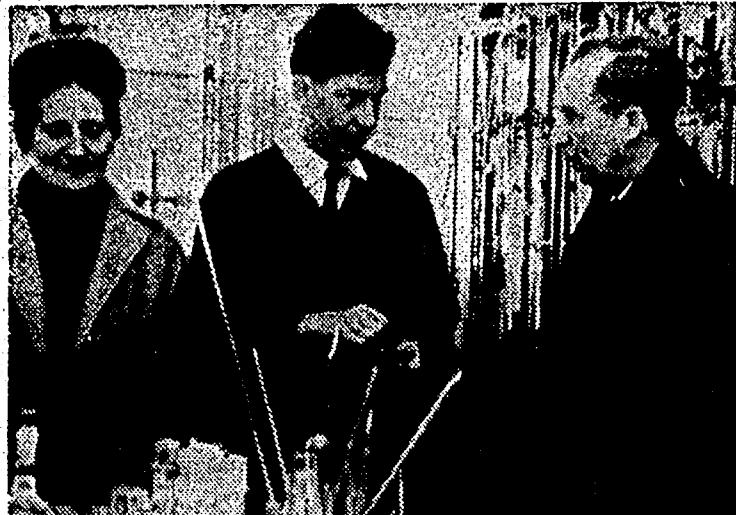

MONTREAL (CJN) — McGill Daily, McGill University's campus newspaper, last weekend editorially protested against the hate press which now "hit McGill". According to the editors of this college paper, up to now the daily has been ignoring material received from the American Nazi party and similar groups.

However, the situation is such, the paper continues, that "the trickle" of hate propaganda has become "a flood." And when mailings begin to approach mass levels, it is incumbent upon the press to speak as loudly as possible.

McGill Daily also declared editorially that students now were receiving hand addressed propaganda kits.

Influential people in the Montreal Jewish community mentioned The Canadian Jewish News as the first newspaper in Canada which weeks before this timely editorial had revealed the existence of a Nazi underground in Montreal and Toronto, which distributes antisemitic literature. Also they told us that they agree in full with the McGill Daily's editorial conclusion that "every student, indeed every citizen, should join in the fight" against this evil.

INSTITUTE VISITORS — Professor Spinks, president of the University of Saskatchewan, and Mrs. Spinks, who are seen upon a visit to the Weizmann Institute of Science. They are shown here in the company of Dr. Samuel (center), the late Lord Samuel's grandson and one of the outstanding scientists at the Institute, in the department for atomic physics.

HUMAN RELATIONS

Mother's Outbursts

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I had a strong disagreement with my brother-in-law regarding my eldest daughter. She is in a special class condensing three years of junior high into two.

At open school week I was shocked to hear from her teachers that her work isn't as good as it should be. I was totally unprepared for this. She never complained or asked for help.

I was hurt that a child with brains and ability should do nothing but waste it. She is intelligent, knows responsibility and is old for her 12 years. I reprimanded her sharply for not letting me know what was in store for me.

That evening, I felt terrible. I thought my hollering could have an adverse effect on her school marks. The next morning I apologized for my outburst, and assured her that her mother and father love her. But I also told her she should put more effort into her school work.

My brother-in-law says I was wrong on two counts—first, for hollering, I agreed, and second, "you don't apologize to a child." With this, I disagreed vehemently.

Why shouldn't an adult apologize if she feels she did wrong? I feel my daughter respected me more for it.

ANSWER: Perhaps the person you are really furious with is yourself. When you yelled at your daughter, you were really hollering at yourself for not being closer to your child and more aware of what was happening in her life. You must have had some earlier indications of the level of her work from her grades on examinations, or report cards. But it was only when the teacher said she was not working up to her potential that you became upset. Also, your fury with her was not because she wasn't realizing her potential but because you saw in the report a bad report on you as a mother.

You had every right to tell your daughter that you were sorry for yelling at her. It helps a child not to demand perfection of herself when the parent does not set herself up as perfect. But what is difficult to understand is why your brother-in-law was brought into the picture.

Family closeness is, of course, desirable but sometimes it is an invasion of the privacy of a child to call upon a relative to share in a matter concerning her and of which she isn't too proud.

To make a public exhibition of a child's inadequate performance before a relative can make her feel worse than any scolding from a parent.

It is very important for a parent to have faith in her own judgment. Otherwise, it is hard for the child to develop faith in herself.

Perhaps you feel that your husband is not being active enough or strong enough as a father in his daughter's education and rearing. This, you—must try to remedy by involving him directly in such things as going with you to open school meetings and conferences where his daughter's progress is discussed with the teachers.

However much this uncle may love his niece it cannot compare with what you, her parents feel for her. When you let this love guide you, you will wind up doing the right thing most of the time.

ARCHBISHOP HAKIM

"GIFT TO JEWS"

Also, Archbishop Hakim, in this secret document, protested the confiscation of "some Arab land" which was given as "a gift to the Jews." The Archbishop claims that the compensation offered by the Israeli government is unjust, as it is insufficient. Moreover Hakim, an Arab, cautions the Pope that influential Arabs are leaving the country continuously and, if this trend continues, there will be no Christians left in Galilee within fifteen or twenty years. Hakim also made a similar statement about the Christians in Jordan. He declared that the Christian Arabs are emigrating from the Moslem state of Jordan; that within fifteen or twenty years there will be no Christians in Jordan, including the old City of Jerusalem and Bethlehem.

Letters To The Editor

THE ANGRY YOUNG MAN

Dear Editor:
Regarding the January 24th issue of The Canadian Jewish News, it is one thing to let "angry young men speak up candidly, fearlessly, excitedly, irreverently," as is suggested. It is another to let them use the newspaper to be offensive. This is the mildest term I can apply, to Gary Gottlieb's suggestion that the supposed attitude toward European Jewry of Pius XII was motivated by a shortage of soap.

No responsible person has charged Pius XII with anything more than an error in judgment, and plenty of Jews were guilty of that. (Read Ringleblum on the Jewish police in the Warsaw Ghetto).

I believe the readership of The Canadian Jewish News is not restricted to Jews. It shouldn't take much imagination to see
